

Migration to Open Source

The Open Source movement, is a reality of today's technological landscape. Now it is not necessary to spend large amount of money in licensed software for your company. From the operating system to the desktop, there exists an Open Source application that can solve your needs.

At Web2mil we have a vast experience in the process of adapting open source software to work for you. From the adaptation to a similar but different experience, to the actual instalation of open source solution, the transition is not an easy task.

Through carefull planning this process can be made painless, obtaining important savings without decreasing productivity -and many times- increasing it.
